City Rejects Garbage Sale Bids

WILL CONTINUE TO OPERATE DEPARTMENT

Officials Decide To Maintain Collection Service as Municipal Function.

BOARD OF CONTROL ACTS

Mayor and Aids Throw Out Proposals When Council Is Unfavorable.

By a unanimous vote the city board of control, consisting of Mayor W. C. Phillians, Service Director E. O. Uncapher and Safety Director Emery Murphy, this morning rejected all bids for the sale of the city garbage collection equipment. Bids were opened by the board Thursday..

The action of the board, which means that the department will continue under municipal control was prompted by the attitude of city council at its meeting last night, according to the wording of the motion for the rejection of the bids made by Safety Director Murphy.

Murphy Makes Motion

The motion of the safety director reads, "Owing to the action of city council in a caucus session in which the members expressed themselves as unanimously opposed to the sale of the garbage collection department, we, the board of control, reject any and all bids submitted on March 24, for the sale of the department."

The question of the sale of the equipment was settled entirely by council in a caucus session last night and aside from a short talk by Jess Warwick, representing the Central Labor union, who opposed the sale, no reference was made to the matter in open meeting.

A general sentiment against the sale was given by members of council as the reason for abandoning the plan at this time.

In reply to Warwick's statement that the Central Labor union was opposed to the sale of the department, President James E. Messenger asked that the organization give its support wherever possible to the maintenance of the department.

Will Study Systems

Service Director Uncapher said this morning that no definite plans for changing the operation of the department had been made. Mayor Phillians and Uncapher are planning visits to neighboring cities where a similar plan is in use, for the purpose of studying ways and means whereby the costs can be reduced without reducing the efficiency of the department.

The department, organized seven years ago, was for several years operated on a self-supporting basis but with a decrease in the number of subscribers the department, according to the service director, has operated at a loss for the last several years.

Bids for the department were submitted by the Terminal Service Co. of Cincinnati, Joe Liberto & Son of Oakent, Pa., and T. A. McKinstry of this city. The latter bid was not considered because it was not accompanied by a check or bid bond.

HOOVER TO OPPOSE MORE CASH BONUS

Will Veto Bill If One Is Passed, President Indicates Today.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 29—President Hoover announced formally today he was "absolutely opposed to the enactment by congress of additional soldiers' bonus legislation, and indicated he would veto such a bill if passed.

The President, speaking at his regular press conference, stated that informal polls of the house of representatives have "created apprehension in the country" that a further bonus bill calling for an outlay of about $2,000,000,000 would be passed.

Such action, he asserted with great emphasis, would undo "every effort that is being made to reduce government expenditures and balance the budget."

As he spoke to newspapermen gathered about his desk, Mr. Hoover placed increasing emphasis upon his words in reading a prepared statement held before him.

Concluding the brief statement, he said sharply: "That is all."

2 HOLDUP SUSPECTS ARRESTED

IN COURT TODAY

Sale of Watch Taken from One of Seven Victims Gives Clue.

Two Columbus men, suspected as the robbers who held up seven men in the Marion Rapid Transit Co. office on north Main street Feb. 28 were to be arraigned in municipal court on robbery charges today at 3 p. m.

They are Mike Circone, 29, brother of Frank Circone, 20, one of the gang of five who robbed the Farmers Deposit bank at Richwood of $10,000 last fall, and Frank Ferguson, 20. They were brought to Marion last night by Police Chief William E. Marks after being held in the Columbus prison since last Friday.

Held as Suspects

Columbus detectives, acting on instructions from the local police department, picked up Circone and Ferguson as suspects in the holdup, and held them until last night while searching for a third man, but they previously indicated that the third suspect is wanted.

At least one of the seven persons whom the two bandits lined up against a wall during the bus office holdup has identified both Circone and Ferguson as the holdup men.

Sale of a watch believed to have been taken from one of the holdup victims furnished a clue which led to the arrest of Circone and Ferguson as suspects, officers said this morning. The watch was sold to an individual shortly after the holdup.

Affidavits Filed

Officers refused to let anyone talk to Circone and Ferguson this morning

Police planned to question the men sometime before the arraignment. Among those waiting to see the prisoners was Attorney C. C. Clouse of Columbus, a brother of Circone, and two women

Affidavits charging both suspects with robbery of the terminal were signed by Police Chief William E. Marks. He said that local and Columbus authorities had been working together on the case for three weeks, and that the arrests were made by Columbus city detectives Heise and Connell.

The bus terminal was held up shortly after midnight Feb 28 by two men. They took $282.50, and several articles from the seven persons in the terminal at the time.

HOUSE UNITES ON TAX BILL

All Factions Pledge Support for Non-Partisan Plan To Balance Budget.

RESPOND TO GARNER PLEA

Postage Rate Boost Included in Substitute for Sales Tax Measure.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 29—The house and its leaders, Democrat, Republican and independent, alike, pledged themselves today to the passage of a non-partisan tax bill to balance the budget.

Responding to a call by Speaker Garner for those members to stand who would support such a policy, virtually the entire membership arose with a vigorous outburst of applause. Very few remained seated.

Snell Assures Support

A few minutes later Representative Snell of New York, the Republican leader, gave his word that the minority party members would back the speaker and the program of the ways and means committee.

Then came the leaders of the opposition to the sales tax, Laguardia, free-speaking Republican from New York, and Rankin of Mississippi, and Doughton of North Carolina, Democrats, to offer their support to the new rates brought in by the committee.

These called for an increase in postage and numerous special taxes, as well as levies on sales of stocks, bonds and real estate, to replace the $600,000,000 cut out of the revenue bill by defeat of the sales tax.

Provides Ample Funds

The new proposals, including a one cent boost in first class postage rates, were estimated to give the bill a total of $1,293,000,000 of revenue. The prospective deficit of the federal treasury in 1933 is $1,241,000 000.

A full attendance by the membership add packed galleries were present to hear the speaker, talking in even, measured tones, urge the house to accept the proposal to balance the budget.

Then 10 per cent sales tax on cosmetics, the first of the ways and means committee substitute proposals, was approved by the house without a record vote. The committee estimates it will raise $25,000,000.

CONTINUES OPTIMISTIC

Travels in Plane; Indicates Another Conference Will Come Soon.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 29—Declaring he was as optimistic as ever, the Rev. H Dobson-Peacock of Norfolk, Va one of the Lindbergh baby intermediaries, left for Virginia shortly before noon by airplane.

"I feel that as a result of this publicity," said the dean before hopping off, "that the happy ending may be delayed a little while, but I am confident there will be a happy ending."

He and his navy pilot, Lieutenant George L. Richards arrived at the Philadelphia navy yard at 11 a. m. after a conference with Col. Lindbergh at his home in Hopewell, N. J.

Mr. Dobson-Peacock, who with Rear Admiral Guy H Burrage and John H. Curtis, boat builder, have interested themselves in the return of the kidnaped baby spent the night in Philadelphia. He conferred for an hour with Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh at Hopewell, N. J.

The plane in which the dean left for home was the same one in which he arrived.

"I am quite aware," he said, "that Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf of the New Jersey state police, has discounted our story somewhat.

"Despite the reaction of Colonel Schwarzkopf, I still remain as optimistic as ever, and I am now returning to Norfolk to take the matter up with my associates."

The dean was asked whether he intended to return to the Lindbergh home within a few days. He hesitated momentarily, then said.

"I may do so. In fact I hope so I almost expect to, and I will say this: If I go back to the Lindbergh home within a few days, or a day or so, it will mean that I have something very definite to offer.

"I am sorry that I am not able to give more details"

Babe's Early Return Believed Unlikely

By The Associated Press

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 29—Hope that the Lindbergh baby would be sent home before the month's end ebbed today.

The Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock of Norfolk, Va., who risked his life yesterday for an hour's talk with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, said afterward he would probably confer again with the flying colonel in three or four days.

This statement by one of three Norfolk intermediaries who are trying to get the kidnaped child back was interpreted as meaning that his immediate release was not expected.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, said again that "Col. Lindbergh does not believe the information obtained at Norfolk to be of specific significance in this case."

What the Norfolk dean told the famous airman was kept closely guarded, although he did say the conference resulted from a "contact" with the kidnapers

The clergyman flew with a navy pilot from Norfolk to Philadelphia despite buffeting winds and rain and snow. From Philadelphia he motored to Hopewell.

Report Negotiators Plan Sea Trip

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE, Md., March 29—Charles H. Consolvo, president of a Baltimore Hotel corporation, has been asked to take the three Norfolk intermediaries in the Lindbergh kidnap case out of the 12-mile limit in the Atlantic ocean to meet the kidnapers of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., according to Mrs. Consolvo.

Mrs. Consolvo said she talked by telephone with her husband, in Norfolk, last night, and that he told her arrangements had been made to take his yacht, the Marcon, with Dean Harold Dobson-Peacock, John Hughes Curtis and Rear-Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, aboard to meet the abductors.

"The kidnapers are supposed to be in a boat 12 miles out," Mrs. Consolvo said. "My husband told me that he understood they would be waiting there. The trip was supposed to begin this morning. I have heard nothing to indicate it was called off."

Victim of Car Mishap Winning Fight for Life

By The Associated Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 29—Game Jack Doty, who lived in an electric oven at a temperature of 103 degrees for 322 days and upset predictions of doctors that he couldn't survive burns suffered in a motorcar accident, has gone to the hospital to get some new skin.

He was injured early last May. His back was seared to the bone and his right leg parched. Physicians were almost sure he could not live but placed him in the oven, heated by a battery of electric lights, as a last resort. Only his head and shoulders were free

The treatment of lights and heat has drawn the impurities from his burns and aided the growth of new underskin so grafting can be started. He was moved from his home to the hospital yesterday in heated blankets. He will be there four or five weeks while the new skin covers his burns

During his oven sojourn, Doty played bridge with his wife and friends, just talked or watched two-year-old Jack, Jr., for amusement. He is cheerful and confident of recovery.

CONNER OUT OF STATE RACE

WANTS PARTY HARMONY

Bucyrus Candidate Left in Field To Oppose Warner for Reelection.

Ben R. Conner of Ada, president of the First National bank there has withdrawn from the race for Republican state central committee from the Eighth district, it was learned yesterday afternoon Conner formally drew his name last Saturday.

Conner's action leaves the Eighth district state central committee fight between Fred W Warner of Marion, veteran committeeman and former chairman of the state central committee, and J Dudley Sears of Bucyrus, Crawford county prosecutor

"Party Harmony"

"It would cause too much disruption in the party to have too many on the ticket," Conner explained yesterday when asked why he had withdrawn. He disclosed that Sears' plans to file for the office were unknown to him when he filed.

Sears and Conner, who filed about the same time, both declared they had been urged to oppose Warner for committeeman because of Warner's anti-Hoover activities both in the state committee and in Washington

Conner, however, denied that he was withdrawing in favor of either candidate.

Not the Reason

"That's not particularly the reason," he answered when asked whether he had withdrawn to preclude the possibility that he and Sears would have split the vote among anti-Warner Republicans of the Eighth district

Conner said he wished simply to state that he believed his withdrawal would promote party harmony. "I'm a great believer in party harmony," he said

He was a Willis delegate to the national Republican convention in 1928. He is known throughout the district for his party regularity and for his support of the Hoover administration.

STATE MAY EXTEND TAX FILING PERIOD

Commission Expected To Move Up Deadline for Personal Returns.

The state tax commission is expected to extend to April 20 the time for making personal property tax returns, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Columbus this morning. The extension was suggested by Governor White.

Such an extension would solve a serious problem in this county, County Auditor Earl E. Thomas said this morning. A majority of 1,500 persons who have not yet filed returns in this county, would be assessed 50 per cent penalties after March 31, the original deadline, if the extension is not made, he estimated.

It would be physically impossible for all 1,500 to file listings by Thursday night, as considerable time is required to fill out the six-page blanks on which property is listed. Since Feb. 15, when first returns were taken, 2,400 listings have been filed by the auditor. Approximately 4,000 residents of the county have personal property taxable under the new law, the auditor estimated.

DEATH CLAIMS "LEW" MILLER

WORKED TRADE 69 YEARS

Once Employed by President Harding and World-Famed Humorist.

Martin Luther Miller, 88, Marion's oldest printer, died yesterday at 9:45 p. m. at City hospital. Infirmities of age caused his death.

Mr Miller known among his friends as "Lew," had been a printer since he was 18 years of age, working steadily until a little more than three years ago. He was employed on The Star for many years

Until his wife's death more than three years ago, his home was at 220 Patten street. Recently he had taken a room at the M. E. Farrell home at 238 north Main street.

Member of Union

Despite his advanced age, Mr. Miller walked to The Star office once or twice a week until within the last two weeks, enjoying a talk with his former associates in the composing room. He was a member of Marion Typographical Union No. 675

Mr Miller is believed to have worked at his trade longer than any other man in central Ohio if not in the entire state. He learned the trade in Bucyrus.

In 1861 he came to Marion and was connected with practically all of the newspapers, weekly and daily, published in this city since that time.

He was employed for years by the late President Harding. Another of his famous employers was David Ross Locke of the firm of Robison and Locke, pioneer publishing company at Bucyrus. Locke later went with the Toledo Blade and became world famous as a humorist, writing under the name of Petroleum V. Nasby.

Until the last three and a half years he was actively engaged in his work. He gave up his position at The Star in April of 1928.

Born in Bucyrus

Mr. Miller's long career as a printer was recognized in articles appearing from time to time in trade journals.

He was born in Bucyrus on March 13, 1844, and at the age of 19 was married in Marion to Miss Mary Jane Cone.

His wife preceded him in death in September of 1928. He is survived by a son and daughter, Edward A. Miller of Wallace street and Mrs. James E. Staley of south Seffner avenue.

The funeral will be conducted Thursday at 4 p. m. at the Axe and Eccles funeral home on east Church street with Rev. Howard L. Olewiler of the First Presbyterian church officiating. Burial will be made in Marion cemetery. Friends from the composing room of The Star will act as pallbearers. The body may be viewed at the funeral home.

SPEEDY ACTION IS REQUESTED BY GOVERNOR

Pictures Urgent Need of Prompt Unemployment Aid in Talk to Legislature.

WOULD RAISE $23,500,000

Not Proposing "Dole," He Says; Would Bar Other Matters from Session.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 29—Speedy enactment of measures intended for relief of the unemployed was asked by Governor White today in his message to the Ohio general assembly, convened in extraordinary session at the summons of the chief executive. He delivered the message in person.

The call for immediate action followed the submission by the governor of his plan for relief which he predicted would give $23,500,000 for relief purposes. The program would provide a one per cent excise tax on public utilities; authorizing subdivisions to issue bonds to be paid from the excise taxes; creation of a state relief committee to serve only during the emergency, and diversion of the local subdivision's share of the gasoline tax collections.

Painting a brief word picture of the needs of the state, especially the larger cities, the governor said "it is primarily the duty of local communities to meet these needs, and until the present time they have been met, if not in adequate and satisfactory manner, at least to the extent that starvation and disorder have been avoided."

Would Sidetrack Other Matters

The governor said he had been requested by the proponents of many causes to submit their problems to the extraordinary session but added that he believed they could await the next regular session and that the present meeting should devote its attention entirely to the problems of unemployment.

"I am not advocating such a thing as a dole," the governor continued. "The proposed legislation contemplates a labor return to the agencies administering funds wherever possible, but surely, where work can not be supplied or where those in need are physically or otherwise unable to work in return for the relief administered, the meeting of their bare needs and the prevention of their starvation can not be considered a dole, but rather an obligation which government owes to its citizens."

Pointing out that he did not claim his plan "is perfect," the governor said he will be "only too happy" to give consideration to any plan that appears more constructive to the legislature.

Firm on Utilities

"It is but fair to inform you, however," he added, "that I will not look with favor upon any revenue raising measures which do not include a just and equitable tax on public utilities of Ohio, for I feel that these industries have suffered less from the current depression than any other, and can best afford to contribute to the alleviation of

FOUR YOUTHS FACE AUTO THEFT CHARGES

Arrest in Norwalk Ends Joy Ride Excursion; Police Get Confession.

A protracted joy ride which ended with the arrest of four Marion youths at Norwalk yesterday and the recovery of a Packard sedan belonging to Earl Smith of south State street at Sandusky early yesterday morning, was revealed in reported confessions made to Chief W. E. Marks by the four last night.

Robert Huston, 20, of 156 Park boulevard, Chester Culver, 17, of 292 west Church street, Paul Lehner, 21, of 296 Clinton street, and Kenneth Stout, 18, of 292 west Church street, were arrested by Norwalk police yesterday morning as they were about to enter a Chevrolet sedan they had previously taken in Norwalk for a joy ride to Vermillion and return.

Brought back to this city last night all four gave the same version of their trip, Chief Marks said. Taking the Packard from in front of the Smith home Sunday night, they said, they drove to Sandusky. When they discovered they were about out of gasoline they took another machine, abandoning the Packard. They told police they drove the second car to Bellevue where they again run out of gas. Abandoning the second car they took another and drove to Norwalk. Here they took the fourth car for a drive to Vermillion. It was upon their return to Norwalk from Vermillion that they were arrested.

All four were being held today, under warrants charging automobile stealing. They await hearings before Municipal Judge W. R. Martin.

New Hope

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., March 29—That baby news from down in Virginia sounds the most encouraging there has been.

Of course, this is a case where everybody wants to get in on it and claim they know something, but if we can trust those prominent men like that to know what they are doing, look what it would mean to give out all this hope falsely.

Why, it would just show you how some folks could be either misled, or to what means they would go to get publicity.

But I believe they know something, and we will all get some good news, and the world will look brighter to everybody.

Yours,

Will Rogers

"Dulcy," Presented by Mimes, Is Good Comedy

Marion Little Theater Group Stages Show at the Playhouse in Oakland Heights; Play Will Be Repeated Tonight and Wednesday.

Wives with social ambitions towards the 400 circle, and with a weather eye out to promoting their husbands' business interests at the same time, come in for their share of hilarious "razzing" in "Dulcy," the play which the Marion Mimes will present tonight and Wednesday night at the Playhouse on Davids street. Last night's first performance was given before a fairly large audience.

The play has the hearty comedy element so appreciated in these trying times and to watch the manipulations of "Dulcy," played by Elizabeth Crissinger, is funny.

"Dulcy" has her own ideas of a guest list for a week end party - guests with nothing in common but dislike for each other. Among them are George Kraatz as "C. Roger Forbes" and Miss Viola Peacock as his wife, "Mrs. Forbes," Gerald Wilson as "Schuyler Van-Dyck" Miss Gladys Brobst as "Angela Forbes" Ernest Arndt as "Vincent Leach" and Paul Brobst in the role of the unexpected guest, "Blair Patterson" Charles Ellicker plays the role of "Dulcy's" husband, "Gordon Smith" Bob Uncapher is "Tom Sterrett" a business associate of "Forbes," a jewelry magnate, and John Rife is "William Parker," brother of "Dulcy" and in love with "Angela" Ralph Hinklin plays the role of the convict-on parole butler "Henry"

Promotes Wedding

"Dulcy" invites the conglomerate personalities to be her guests In the end, one is a "nut," she unwittingly promotes a marriage between "Angela" and "William," smooths troubled domestic waters between "Forbes" and his wife, and brings about the business deal of her husband and "Forbes." But dumb "Dulcy," a sweet person with the inherent faculty of saying the wrong thing at the right time and an effervescent desire for everyone to be happy while she unwittingly does everything in her power to make them most uncomfortable, brings everything to rights in her own dumb way, even to solving a jewel robbery.

The play is in three acts, all set in the living room of the home of "Dulcy" and her husband. The action occurs in the space of one night and the following morning and the dialogue is the work of George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly

"Sterrett" is advertising manager for "Forbes," and is in love with "Angela" "Leach," a scenarist, with his romantic ravings wins her heart and with "Dulcy" as aid, they elope, with "Parker" as their chauffeur

"Smith" is trying to sell his jewelry interests to "Forbes" who is planning a merger, 'Dulcy' messes things up, seems to straighten them out by enlisting the aid of "VanDyck," a "millionaire" and completely wrecks her husband mentally. But the financial aid of a "millionaire" gives 'Smith's' wares more value in "Forbes'" eyes and everything eventually straightens out, but the surprise of the success is as much a marvel to "Dulcy" as to the audience

Clarke Directs Play

W. W. Clarke, a member of the Mimes for nearly three years, directed the play.

Newman Browarsk, violinist and Edgar Barnhart, pianist furnished music between the acts

Saxon Kling, playwright will direct the next Mimes play, "The Haunted House," for which tentative dates of April 25 to 27 have been set.

Membership cards and season tickets will be acknowledge for the performances of "Dulcy." Tickets are on sale from members or at the boxoffice.

THE REASON FOR THIS GREAT SALE

Absolute necessity forces this great furniture disposal sale. Early in the season we sent our buyers into the furniture markets of the country with instructions to buy greater quantities of merchandise than ever before—at which time we had every reason to believe that our Fall and Winter business would show its usual increase—but owing to the backward season and present day business condition—which necessarily retarded business—we now find our great store overloaded with well over $50,000 worth of high-grade furniture store merchandise that must be disposed of within the next nine days. To move this tremendous surplus stock requires drastic price cutting, notwithstanding the inevitable loss of profits. We have made prices in our $100,000 furniture disposal sale that will cause a sensation in Marion when the news of this sale is spread over the community. All we say is COME EARLY! YOU WILL NOT BE DISAPPOINTED.

LEGISLATURE HEARS WHITE RELIEF PLAN

Governor Calls for Speedy Action for Aid of Unemployed.

the desperate needs of the citizens of our state at this critical time."

Following is the text of the governor's message:

I have been studying this problem for months and have watched with grave concern the ever increasing burden which has been placed upon public and private funds because of this condition. I hoped that the economic depression would run its course and that the normal methods of meeting needs would suffice. I hoped that the budgets of counties, municipalities and townships could be curtailed to the point whereby these public funds, aided by individual giving, could meet the situation. The response of the warmhearted people of Ohio to appeals for charitable and community funds has been most generous; they have given in a far greater proportion to their means than ever before; but in spite of every effort, it has now become apparent that extraordinary means must be provided to assist local subdivisions in meeting their relief problems. Therefore, the necessity for this special session of the general assembly.

To the 89th general assembly of Ohio:

Section 8, article 3 of the constitution of Ohio vests authority in the governor on extraordinary occasions to convene the general assembly in special session. Pursuant to such authority, I have called you together to consider and enact legislation to meet a grave emergency, that of unemployment and hunger, which now confronts the state of Ohio.

In my message to the 89th general assembly on January 13, 1931, I said: "Our state, as the entire nation, is suffering from a heart-rending economic depression. * * * In time of crisis, like this, it behooves all branches of the government, all public officials everywhere, to labor and cooperate harmoniously and earnestly for the common public weal."

Problems Unforeseen

Your body enacted temporary legislation to meet conditions as they then appeared. No one could foresee that conditions during the ensuing year would become infinitely worse, and bring problems in their wake which would prove too great to be adequately met by existing resources and legislation.

Tax Becomes Uncertain

In normal times, such needs are met by taxes imposed, collected, and distributed in accordance with the laws created for such purpose. During the current depression however, we are undergoing the process of effectuating a new system of taxation, and, at this time, the amount of revenue which will be raised under it can not be calculated. It must be given a fair trial and the results then evaluated. Tax collections on real estate are, however, much diminished, and tax delinquencies in the state of Ohio have reached an appalling amount; nor can the needs be met by an attempt to collect those delinquent taxes, since it would be almost wholly an attempt to collect money from those who have none, to care for others, more destitute. It is clear that 1932 relief needs can not be met by existing methods of taxation. Incomes both of corporations and of individuals have greatly decreased; wages have been lowered; property values both of real and of personal property have shrunk; capital has been lost; savings depleted, and in countless cases entirely wiped out; agriculture lies prostrate; and voluntary contributions to meet relief needs can not be relied upon to carry us through the year.

Beyond Local Control

It is primarily the duty of the local communities to meet these needs, and until the present time they have been met, if not in adequate and satisfactory manner, at least to the extent that starvation and disorder have been avoided. The greater portion of the state geographically could, by the exercise of most rigid economy and self sacrifice, and by the giving of private individuals, and the diverting of all possible public funds, continue to meet the need for a time. Conditions, however, in our populous centers have become desperate. Public and private funds in these cases are facing exhaustion, either immediate, or within a clearly defined future. To cite a few instances, Cuyahoga county cared for 23,200 families in February of this year; in the same month Hamilton county cared for 14,066 families, Lucas county 11,000, Franklin county 6,748, Mahoning county 10,000, Montgomery county 6,773, Stark county 7,446 and Summit county 5,800. Many other instances could be cited but the counties mentioned contain 54 per cent of the population of the state of Ohio. The need in these counties is great and unquestioned and existing conditions in these and other counties require that the state consider their problems and afford them the necessary aid. After all, government exists only for the service and protection it can afford to its citizens, and Ohio, the second richest state in the union, must not and shall not permit its citizens to starve.

Only One Vital Issue

I have been asked by proponents of many causes, to include in my call legislation deemed important or essential by them. I have given each case most careful consideration; many of the proposals suggested are meritorious, but none affect the health or safety of the people of Ohio. There is but one issue that does, namely—unemployment and its attendant problems. Other proposals, however meritorious, can better be the subject of consideration by the general assembly in regular session, and it is my belief that the coming months before the general assembly regularly convenes again can well be employed in constructive study and consideration and in the drafting of careful legislation designed to meet these other needs.

In my proclamation, I outlined the legislation considered necessary at this time; which is, first, authorizing and empowering the counties of the state to issue bonds for relief purposes; second, increasing excise taxes on public utilities and providing that the funds so raised be applied to the retirement of such bonds; third, permitting boards of education to supply shoes, clothing, and medical attention to school children; fourth, permitting the portion of the gasoline and motor vehicle license taxes now allocated to local sub-divisions, to be used for relief purposes; fifth, creating a state relief commission to regulate the administration of relief laws.

The legislation I propose has not been hastily conceived or presented. For more than four months it has been the subject of constant study. The possibility of the necessity of a special session has been long recognized, and certain measures have been taken in an effort to meet the problem, but always recognizing that, should this session be necessary, plans and legislation deliberately conceived should be offered for your consideration. I have, however, had constantly in mind, that there must be no additional tax imposed upon our already overburdened farmers and home owners. I am not advocating such a thing as a dole. The proposed legislation contemplates a labor return to the agencies administering funds wherever possible, but surely, where work can not be supplied or where those in need are physically or otherwise unable to work in return for the relief administered, the meeting of their bare needs and the prevention of their starvation, can not be considered a dole, but rather an obligation which government owes to its citizens.

No Claim To Perfection

I do not claim that the plan offered is perfect, nor is there any attempt on my part to assume the functions of the legislative branch of the state government. If your body, in its deliberations, can evolve a more constructive or practical plan, I shall be only too happy to give it just and careful consideration. It is but fair to inform you, however, that I will not look with favor upon any revenue-raising measures which do not include a just and equitable tax upon the public utilities of Ohio, for I feel that these industries have suffered less from the current depression than any other, and can best afford to contribute to the alleviation of the desperate needs of the citizens of our state at this critical time. I say this in no spirit of radicalism or prejudice against this great industry, which renders vital and necessary services to our people, but the fact remains that we face a grave emergency and this appears to be the most immediately available means of raising the necessary additional revenue.

Many plans for raising money to meet this need have been submitted to me and have received my serious attention. For various reasons, after mature consideration of the interests of the state and its citizens, I have adopted the plan I now offer you in the sincere belief that it presents the best solution of the problem.

Your duty here is to enact such just and equitable laws as will meet the emergency. I am submitting my plan to you, the general assembly; if it is adopted, I assume full responsibility for its administration through a state relief commission, to be appointed by me, and I pledge you that I will select only the most outstanding persons for its membership. I earnestly request that you enact the principles of this plan into law at the earliest possible moment to the end that those of our citizens who are now unable to find employment of any kind, whose dependents are in immediate danger of suffering and want, may be reassured as to their future, and that their confidence in the government of their state may be maintained.

Let it not be said that there were in Ohio those who hungered, and we gave them no meat; those naked, and we clothed them not.

First Obstacle Hit

The governor's program ran into its first snag, politically, during the morning. His suggestion that two of his relief bills be introduced by Republicans and two by Democrats met with refusal at the hands of the former. The Republican leaders, while promising to support the program, said the bills should be introduced by Democrats.

The governor designated Representative W. T. Roberts, Democrat of Belmont county, to introduce the utility tax, and bond measures. The Democratic house floor leader, J. F. Bittinger of Ashland, was named to introduce the bill creating a state relief commission. Sponsors for the gasoline tax and motor fee diversion bills were to be named later.

Officials of the large cities, generally claim the governor's program will not yield sufficient money to care for their needs and consequently are proposing other relief plans.

So far, the utilities have not indicated they will present a united front to oppose the governor's proposed tax increase on their business, but it is anticipated there will be opposition from some of them.

There was divided opinion among the members of the legislature as to the probable time it will take to enact required relief measures. Speaker Arthur Hamilton said he did not see why more than a week will be required. Others claim it will take two or three weeks.

Alabama's intramural sports program includes 11 events.

FOUR OF FAMILY DIE IN DETROIT BLAST

Filling Station Attendants' Home-Made Heater Explodes.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Mich., March 29—Explosion of a home-made heater in the garage-home of Oliver Stewart, 45, early today caused his death and that of his wife and their two children. The blast wrecked the interior of the small structure but left its walls standing.

The four members of the family, including a daughter, Mamie, 5, and a son, Thomas, 2, were sleeping in three beds in a room off the kitchen.

Stewart had manufactured a heater for the house by utilizing oil drawn from automobiles in the station. He had placed a tank near the roof and fed the fuel through a tube, into the kitchen stove, which burned coal. The oil supply was adjusted to feed slowly, dropping on the coal. Firemen believed the oil dripped into the stove too rapidly, forming a gas deposit which blew up when Stewart started the heater this morning.

"WOOGS" IS OUT OF MAY QUEEN RACE

By The Associated Press

GRANVILLE, O., March 29—The first dog ever to be a candidate for "May queen" at an Ohio college, is no longer in the race.

"Woogs," a pet of Beta Theta Pi fraternity at Denison university, was withdrawn last night when the names of three young women were added to the May queen ballot.

The additions, Anna Robbins of Chattanooga, Tenn., Marjorie Stevens of Dayton, and Juliette Spencer of Columbus, were considered "satisfactory" candidates by some 150 men students who previously had threatened to vote for the dog.

ST LOUIS — More than 1 000 youths, representing Catholic high schools, colleges and St. Louis university here, are on record as believing "that mother's place is in the home." A resolution to that effect was passed at a meeting. It said in part, "Be it resolved, that the Catholic students of this city bend their efforts to remedy present conditions that prevent the realization of this ideal."

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., March 29—Funeral services were being arranged today for Lewis H. Kittredge 61, former president of the Peerless Motor Car Co. Kittredge committed suicide by shooting at his home here yesterday. He left a note saying: "The severity and duration of this depression has gotten on my nerves. It is better that I go now."

NEW WAY FOUND TO FIGHT DREAD FEVER

"Toxoid," Latest Discovery, Considered Step Forward in Battle with Disease.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 29 — A new way to immunize children against scarlet fever, considered more potent than the anti-toxin now in use, was announced today by the U. S. public health service.

The new treatment is a "toxoid" consisting essentially of a mixture of scarlet fever germs and the anti-toxin manufactured by the blood to resist them, with formalin added as a preservative. The "toxoid" is still undergoing tests but is considered so satisfactory that public health service physicians are treating their own children with it.

The toxoid is not only considered a better protection against scarlet fever than the old anti-toxin but is much easier to take because its produces only a mild reaction in the child. Children given the old anti-toxin usually were made quite ill, temporarily so it has not been widely used.

The principle of the toxoid is to "fight fire with fire." Scarlet fever germs that have been made harmless are used in it to fight other scarlet fever germs that are still dangerous.

JAPS BATTLE FORCE OF CHINESE REBELS

Overthrow of Newly Made Manchurian State Threatened; Japs Ask Help.

By The Associated Press

CHANGCHUN, MANCHURIA, March 29—The regime of young Mr. Henry Puayi, heir of the old Manchu emperors and newly made dictator of federated Manchuria, was threatened today by the march of 7,000 Chinese rebels, advancing upon Changchun.

Japanese forces here and at Mukden, the old capital, were called out today to stop the rebel march.

The rebel troops are sworn to overthrow the new government of the federated state.

SITUATION TENSE IN MINE REGION

Shots Fired from Ambush at Scene of Eastern Ohio Strike.

By The Associated Press

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., March 29—A feeling of tenseness persisted today at the Wolford coal mine near Newport, as operations continued despite a wage strike of miners.

Several rifle shots were fired from ambush at the tipple of the mine late yesterday, but no one was hit. Mine guards with machine guns were unable to locate the snipers to return the fire.

Sheriff Harry C. Smith said it was evident the shots were fired by strike sympathizers only to intimidate guards and non-striking employes.

Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson said it was unnecessary to send National guard observers to the mine because the sheriff apparently had the situation under control.

Prisoner Escapes as Police Force Is Jailed

By The Associated Press

IRONTON, O., March 29—The Proctorville police force is in jail for bootlegging.

The force—Marshal Orville Carson and Deputy Marshals Melvin Ness and Ben Dunsee—were clapped in the Scioto county jaid at Portsmouth in default of $10,000 bond each after pleading not guilty before the United States commissioner here.

The marshal and his men were charged with selling five gallons of liquor and conspiring to violate the liquor laws.

To top off Proctorville's plight, four prisoners held in the town jail on liquor charges escaped when their jailers were arrested.

STUDENTS ABANDON VISIT TO COAL FIELD

"Investigators" Return, Having Failed To Reach Objective.

By The Associated Press

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 29—Halfway successful in their visit to Kentucky, a group of Eastern university students today headed homeward from whence they came last Friday to make a sociological survey of the troubled southeastern Kentucky coal fields.

Defeated in their intention to visit mining camps where labor troubles last year resulted in numerous deaths and where the students claimed a "reign of terror" existed, they succeeded in unfolding to Gov. Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky and Gov. Henry Horton of Tennessee their story of alleged mistreatment by Tennessee and Kentucky officers.

After listening to the students' statements, both governors told them in effect there was nothing they could do about their case and were advised that the only course for their alleged mistreatment was with the courts.

Gov. Laffoon received their spokesmen and after listening to their claims of harsh treatment told them they were "applying to the wrong person."

When the students told the governor how they had been ejected from Bell county, he remarked: "You're too easily bluffed."

The students were ejected from Kentucky last Friday night and again Saturday, and four of them again were put out Sunday and started to Frankfort that day.

DELEGATES PLEDGED TO SUPPORT REED

But Missouri Democrats Will —Switch If Deemed Advisable.

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, March 29—Missouri's 54 delegates to the Democratic national convention in Chicago June 27 will "use all honorable means" to obtain the presidential nomination for former United States Senator James A. Reed, but will not be bound to support him "until personally released," as they were at Houston four years ago.

The Democratic state convention indorsed Reed for the presidency, but the convention, other than instructing the delegates to "use all honorable means" in Reed's behalf, made no mention of how long they should support him.

In political circles today it was generally believed that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York would receive the bulk of the Missouri votes, should Reed be eliminated.

Three wet planks submitted to the platform committee were rejected.

FIFTEEN PERISH AS STORMS HIT COAST

North Atlantic Area Caught in Teeth of Post-Easter Gales.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 29—Post-Easter storms that shrieked up and down the North Atlantic states yesterday took at least 15 lives and caused widespread damage.

Northern New England was speckled with stalled automobiles in snow several feet high. There and in upstate New York and Pennsylvania many communities were isolated.

Schools didn't keep, telephone poles toppled, blue birds met death in freezing winds, snow and rain.

High waves gnashed at the Maine coast. At Harrisburg, Pa., a murderer got two and a half hours extra life when the current to the electric chair failed.

A tornadic wind ripped down buildings in three towns near Richmond, Va., doing $100,000 damage. Leshe Dishman, 8, was killed when his home was shattered at Lorreto, Va.

Gov. Roosevelt was "snowbound" at Hyde Park, N. Y., and snow turning to rain undermined a five-story building at Peekskill and it collapsed.

Cold rain kept all but 11,000 youngsters from the egg-rolling on the White House lawn. Last year there were 30,000. At Bedford, N. Y., four persons were drowned when an automobile, its driver blinded by sleet, plunged into a lake at Centerville, Md. The town hall lost part of its roof.

Another appeal has been made to bring money out of hoarding. Nobody need look suspiciously at us.

The price of eggs went up to forty cents each in Moscow last week, but it will hardly do to assume that the approach of Easter was a factor in boosting the price.

From Washington comes a story to the effect that Senator Nye, of North Dakota, threatens to bolt Mr. Hoover, whose "stand on farm relief" is assailed by him. It would be mighty interesting to know when the Hon. Gerald ever supported President Hoover.

The Erie refers to its taxi service between Jersey City and New York City, inaugurated last week, as "something new." Far too mild! An eighty-five-cent fare between its Jersey City terminal and any point in New York south of 110th street, which covers also a part of Brooklyn, saving to the patron $4.15 out of a five-dollar bill, is more than new. It's absolutely unique.

The lower house barred the appearance in the Congressional Record of a cartoon, offered by one of its members, showing a whiskered new speaker of the house sweeping aside federal economy, leadership, common sense, scientific taxation, the sales tax and statesmanship and banging a gavel while he cried "soak the rich." Naturally, a cartoon like that gets too close to the facts to appeal to the house membership.

Guilio Gatti-Casazza, who for twenty-four years has managed the productions of the Metropolitan opera-house, New York City, has offered to stand a cut in pay, or waive pay, to help the Metropolitan out of the financial hole in which it finds itself and has appealed to the stars to aid the Metropolitan that another season of opera may be assured. Evidently the legislator who last week stated that there "aren't any rich any more" was right up on his subject.

Democracy's Dark Days.

Realization that popular government at the moment is facing its severest test is hidden no deeper than can be revealed by a moment's thought. In the United States, in Germany, Great Britain, France, Italy, Spain, Poland, Ireland, Finland, Mexico, the Central and South American republics and the fledgling nations of the Near East it is the people today who are weighing national and international problems—not divine right rulers. Never before has free government felt such a weight of responsibility.

There must be self-control. Germany may flirt with a Hitler, but maintain a Hindenburg in power as its elected leader. Ireland may elect a De Valera, but temper his policies with the moderation of a Cosgrave. Britain, skeptical of too rapid an advance in the wake of liberal leaders, must cling to conservatism to weather the storm. Spain must check the spread of syndicalism, Finland must set itself against communism; the new republics against insurgents—each to weather in its own way forces that threaten to unbalance it. Change is the rule in popular government, but orderly change is the rule in good popular government.

There must be leadership. It is the boast of free government that its crises produce good leaders, but that is only half true. Leaders do not spring full-armed from the formless masses, but are patiently and unknowingly developed—reared in the tradition which it is their destiny to ennoble. At the proper time they must be recognized, elevated and supported.

If it is to be recognized that popular government is on trial, it is necessary to recognize, also, that popular elections are a deterrent to its best operation—a temporary deterrent, fortunately. Americans should be cognizant of the strain already placed on their system of government by the approaching election, as well as the greater strain that will be imposed between now and November. Leaders can be neither sane nor courageous when they are asking for votes, a circumstance reflecting more discredit on the electorate than its servants. Decisions are likely to be dictated by good policy before election; the counsel of good principle and policy do not coincide.

There must be, therefore, a philosophical attitude, in addition to self control and leadership, if popular government is to get good results in these days of extraordinary strain. It is not the fashion to appeal for intangibles in politics, yet there can be no objection to asking for extra attention to the exercise of common sanity in this trying period. An election is politics' circus; clowns, mountebanks and masters of impressionism should not be taken too seriously.

Plain Talk by Mr. Johnson.

There must be realization on the part of those who keep in close touch with the news from day to day that interests unfriendly to America and Americanism are waging a persistent campaign to nullify our laws and destroy our form of government. It is not unfair to say that a considerable element of those who have thus been engaged for years would destroy all forms of government, unless it be that that which prevails under communism may be considered a form of government.

In this un American army may be found the internationalists, the pacificists, individual members of some of the faculties of educational institutions noted for their production of radicals and radicalism, a numerically great church organization and some other groups. Possibly there are many in these classifications who are sincere in their beliefs, but such are but the puppets of the sinister influences which are the moving forces behind the campaign.

Beyond all question there is ample ground for the charge, made last week by Representative Johnson, of Washington, in opposing the Cutting-Griffin bill to admit alien conscientious objectors to citizenship, that some of those advocating the passage of the bill are doing so "because they want the country to be weakened in every way possible in case a great conflict should come, even among our people," his inference being that "in no case should we weaken the oath of allegiance or trim the naturalization laws so that alien pacificists or internationally-minded aliens can come into our family to tell us what to do for the good of this country," and he gave it as his opinion that "for one high-minded person advocating the bill you have nine ulterior persons against the government."

An unfortunate phase of the situation a most dangerous phase—is that the public is so easily deceived by volume of noise or propaganda. There are so comparatively few Americans who feel that it is necessary to talk America and Americanism, and so comparatively many who take advantage of every opportunity to assail, in speech or print, America and things American, that there is danger that the unthinking may be misled. Thus it is that it is good to have a member of one of our federal legislative bodies speak out and voice the danger, and call a spade a spade. There is need of more such utterances, a need arising from the fact that there is always an element in every population which is influenced by a desire to be with the majority.

This is our country. Its form of government, its politics, its institutions are ours. We have passed laws which were deemed for the best interests of our people. All of them may not be. Some of them, so deemed at the time of their enactment, have proved otherwise, but among such can not be numbered those applying to the rights of American citizenship. We do not invite aliens to come to us and acquire citizenship. If they do come, they should be willing to accept our laws as they find them. They should not presume to ask that our laws be changed or so construed as to nullify them. Least of all, should aliens coming to us be given rights or privileges which have not been enjoyed by citizens of our country. They should not be given immunity from duties and responsibilities which Americans are forced to meet.

Our news columns, yesterday, told how four men driving ahead of him, forced the car of a farmer residing near LaRue, to one side of the road and robbed him of $75. It's hardly safe to drive about the country with $75 on one's person—or seventy-five cents for that matter—in this era which we were promised would be marked by empty jails and freedom from crime.

The inventor of a deadly anti-aircraft shell, the plans for which have been turned over to the government, was bound, gagged and terribly beaten by two thugs, who entered his home in Los Angeles, and after ransacking it in their search for the plans, attempted to force him to divulge them. In this day and age, not only what you have, but also what you know, is an incentive to violence.

Rudolph G. Tenerovicz, who last week resigned as mayor of the Detroit suburb of Hamtramck, Joseph Ruponski, former police chief; Harry Wurmuskkusken, a former policeman, and Joseph Kaplan, were given sentences of from three and a half to five years and fined $2,000 each on conviction of charges growing out of the operation of a vice syndicate. One of these days we down here south of the boundary line may wake up to the fact that we might profit by emulating Canada in keeping law enforcement out of politics.

Stranger Than Fiction.

The searchlight that sweeps over the world picking out high points of interest, hung a few days ago on South America's vast Matto Grosso jungle wherein is reported to be Colonel Fawcett, missing since May, 1925. A jungle trapper has reported to the British consul general at Sao Paulo that the lost explorer is alive; he has backed up his almost incredible report with a promise to head a rescue party. It's almost trite to repeat that truth is stranger than fiction if the trapper's story be truth.

Colonel Fawcett's party set out from Fort Bakaira seven years ago. The jungle swallowed every trace. There have been rumors, to be sure. One had the explorer held captive, one had him dead of disease, another had him killed by savages and so on. No one really knows what happened. So many have guessed that one more story by a jungle trapper naturally strains credulity. One point in the trapper's story distinguishes it from the others, however. He saw Fawcett, "a white man, dressed in skins," who asked him to communicate with the British consul general at Sao Paulo. No one else has seen him.

The motive of his exploration was to search for archeological remains "which I believe," he said, "will prove of greater importance in the science of world history than anything ever revealed in Egypt or in ancient Greece."

Personally, Colonel Fawcett was a strange character—portions of mysticism, militarism, archeologist and adventurer rolled into one being. The search for him will give a curious world a new focus of attention.

"WELL, ALL RIGHT, I'LL GIVE YOU THREE TO ONE."

Editorial Opinion.

WHO SAID DEATH VALLEY?

From Los Angeles comes report of the discovery of a great cave in Death valley. To reach its floor it is necessary to descend 125 feet through a circular opening. A. W. Plummer, leader of a group of news photographers, made the discovery and says he intends to explore the cave. In the meantime it may be described as the uttermost depth of that depression in the earth which, during the summer months, is hot enough to suggest the orthodox idea of the nether regions as expounded by old time theologians.

Time was when the mere mention of Death valley suggested that idea. Here was a place at whose entrance, according to popular belief, might well be placed the declaration that all who entered left hope behind. If this was not literally true, it was believed that those who escaped the terrors of Death valley were the exceptions to the rule, even if there were occasional references in the news to wagons drawn by twenty mules transporting the borax found in this sun parched region. It was, of course, proof that under proper conditions men might live in Death valley. Stories of "Death Valley Scotty" supplied further evidence. But still it was believed that the valley was a place to be visited only by adventurers who were willing to endure discomfort and manifold perils.

And then Death valley furnished illustration of the extent to which popular fancy may run counter to the fact. The public read with surprise back in 1927 that a hotel was to be erected in the valley at a point where an artesian well supplied abundance of water, and that the "sink" in which a party of forty-niners perished of thirst and so gave the place its name, was to become a winter resort. Marvelous scenic attractions were discovered there. Now there is prospect of the wonders of a great cave being added to them. Death valley belies its name. It has become a playground. What other spot of dread and misery on the face of the globe will next be turned into a pleasure resort?—Boston Transcript.

ELDORADO IN MEXICO.

Ever since the days of the Spanish conquest, legends of gold hidden in the hills of Mexico have survived. Fortune hunters have dreamed of coming upon sudden riches in hidden caches. In our own day many treasure hunts have been organized; one American went so far as to organize a stock company to look for the wealth which legend says was dropped by the plumed serpent god. Quetzalcoatl, in his mythical flight from the unknown city of Tula. The Mexicans themselves jokingly say that, if only a portion of the ancient treasure were recovered, the national debt would be wiped out.

But it is in Oaxaca, far to the south of the Capital City, that the ancient cry of "El Dorado" has most recently been reechoed. Early in 1931 a small party of archaeologists, led by Alfonso Caso, tunneled into the ancient tomb of Monte Alban, the "White City," that overlooks the pink and white and blue town of Oaxaca. Gold and jewels and human bones met their gaze. Reminiscent of the riches of legendary Mexico, recalling the more celebrated tombs of ancient Egypt, the treasure tomb was rich by worldly standards. Yet it promises to be richer when valued by cultural standards. In modern days the historical value of such treasures far outweighs any mere jeweler's estimate.—Current History.

HAPPY DAYS IN THE SUBSIDY STATES.

From the Yakima Republic: "The Chicago Tribune has no cause to complain because the state of Idaho, which paid into the national treasury, as it says, only $723,000 in 1931, took out $2,632,000; nor because the state of Montana took from the federal treasury $2,700,000 more than it paid in.

"We have in this country a system of indirect taxation of which the Tribune does not make a note. Idaho and Montana contributed as much proportionately to give North Carolina its high rank as a taxpaying state as did Illinois. The disparity between federal appropriations for Illinois and the two western states is hardly greater than that between the largess for Illinois and North Carolina."

There's a bright dream or the taxpayer. He can support the treasury by sitting on the porch smoking cigarets.—Chicago Tribune.

Hardened Arteries.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

One of the common ailments is referred to as hardening of the arteries. The doctors call it arteriosclerosis.

This is a chronic condition of the arteries in which the walls of the vessels become less elastic and thicker than normal. Although most common in advanced life, especially after the sixtieth year, such changes are by no means unknown in middle age.

This trouble is sometimes an inherited defect. It occurs, too, where great mental strain is undergone.

The chief exciting cause of the disease is chronic poisoning of the body tissues. This is found in gout, diabetes and inflammation of the kidneys. Abnormal substances in the blood may injure the blood vessels directly, or, by contacting the smaller vessels, raise the blood pressure. Acute infections may produce conditions that later develop into arteriosclerosis.

In advanced cases of arterial change, the affected vessels become hardened tubes. As a result, there is an interference with the free circulation of the blood.

The symptoms of arteriosclerosis are dependent upon the vessels involved. In some cases general failure of health, pallor of the skin and loss of energy are the first symptoms noted.

Where the blood pressure is high, nervous symptoms are usual. There are dizziness, sleeplessness, mental irritability, mental depression or impairment of memory.

Advanced cases may be accompanied by disturbance of vision. Sometimes the vessels of the abdomen may be affected, causing severe pain not dependent upon the taking of food.

The abdominal symptoms may be misleading and often are not recognized as due to the arterial condition. Usually they are regarded as indicating some form of indigestion, but the fact that the usual treatment for indigestion is useless, while remedies to reduce high blood pressure are effective, will aid the recognition of the real cause.

The outcome of the case is dependent upon the location of the diseased blood vessels and the willingness of the patient to follow the advice of the attending physician. Where the blood pressure is very high and the kidneys show signs of failure, the utmost care must be exercised.

The treatment must be suited to the general health, the habits of the patient and his financial circumstances. The most important thing is moderation in every particular. There should be no overexertion, no alcoholic beverages and very little, if any, tobacco.

The diet should be unstimulating, largely vegetable and cereal. Tea and coffee are not prohibited when taken in moderation, but most patients will do better if milk, fresh or fermented, is substituted for those familiar beverages.

A life free from excitement and work will do much toward ensuring a comfortable and useful existence. Drugs are of less value than hygienic measures. It is important to avoid constipation.

The well-regulated life of a health resort often accomplishes wonders, even in serious cases. Here gentle exercise or massage, regulated diet and freedom from stress of home life tranquilize the mind, lessen nervous excitement, bring blood pressure within normal limits and do much to assist the patient in his struggle toward health.

The government announced that it would proceed to action to dissolve what it termed the "shipping trust."

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, March 29—No one perhaps is more capable of giving a demonstration of senatorial wrath than Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee, when government bureaus come around asking for money.

McKellar, a big, outspoken bachelor, literally tears the roof when these minor agencies of the government submit their requests for funds to the senate.

He thinks about half of them are useless and engages in work that could well be discontinued. And it gets under his skin to keep giving them money.

McKellar always has a field day when the appropriation bills come up in each congress. A member of the senate appropriations committee, he gets two cracks—one in committee and again on the floor.

And he seldom fails to make the most of both opportunities.

• • •

The other day, for example, an effort was made to get $23,000 to stamp out obnoxious weeds in an Indian reservation.

McKellar raved and ranted at the idea.

"Imagine the government appropriating money to eradicate weeds,' he shouted. "Imagine such a thing! And here we have people suffering."

And all efforts to placate him were in vain.

"I'll probably be the only one to vote against such a thing,' he said stubbornly, "but you can put it down that at least I will."

He doesn't get very far sometimes. Every agency of the government seems to have one or more friends who rise up in defense when McKellar attacks. They usually manage to beat him, but he keeps plugging nevertheless.

That's his way. He has been known to tie the senate in a knot more than once. He's an expert at the art of filibustering.

• • •

He offers amendment after amendment to appropriation bills, each aimed at this or that bureau. The senate votes them down, but he is always ready with another.

His favorite trick is to pick out highly technical phrases and words in some bureau's request and make fun of it. He'll find one and turn triumphantly to the senate.

"Do you know what that means? Won't some senator tell us for what we are appropriating money?"

No one will reply, perhaps.

"I don't blame you," he will then say. "I didn't know myself until I went to the dictionary."

Navigation by Sails on the Ohio.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

In the early days when labor was cheap, and other methods of transportation not much more rapid, water thansportation on the Ohio river by the use of sails was tried, evidently with some success. Here is an extract from the report of such an enterprise, printed in the Baltimore Weekly Register, May 29, 1811.

"Arrived at this place Sunday morning, the 26th inst., barge Cincinnati, Battle, commander, from New Orleans, with cargo of sugar, hides, logwood, crates, etc. She sailed from New Orleans on March 3; arrived at the falls of Louisville May 9—sixty-eight days. Remained at the falls nine days and sailed from thence on the 17th.

"This is the first full-rigged vessel that ever arrived from below. She is but 100 foot keel, sixteen foot beam, rigged sloop fashion and burthen 100 tons.

"She was worked over the Falls by eighteen men in half a day."

Neither the Ohio nor the Mississippi river are rapid current streams, and yet when steam was first applied to water crafts on the Ohio there was some doubt that this power would be able to propel a large boat upstream. A demonstration by a trip from Cincinnati to Louisville and return, was required to prove to the doubting.

The Cincinnati, however, appears to have made the long trip from New Orleans on wind power alone, except that man power had to be used to work her over the falls at Louisville.

"You don't advise me to take care not to dwell too strongly on the mistakes of your opponent," said the orator.

"No," answered Senator Sorghum. "Locating the responsibility for what may be wrong doesn't interest folks nearly so much as showing a way to correct it."

"Are you in favor of strict prohibition?" asked the preliminary campaigner.

"Lemme understand you clearly," rejoined Uncle Bill Bottletop. "Are you asking me to give you my opinion as a politician or an epicure?"

• • •

"What the public needs," said the professor, "is more study, more enlightenment. We are drifting into a mournful situation."

"Or," suggested Miss Cayenne, "to make it sound as bad as possible, you might say, 'a morgonful situation.'"

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE

New York, March 29—This is a true fiction editors would dismiss with a shrug, drawing the long bow. A prominent San Franciscan was promised a gay party when he came to New York by a metropolitan friend, and himself royally entertained at the Bohemian club at the Golden Gate.

The banker, living sedately, knew nothing of the frothier side of the city. The San Franciscan had "been around" and was asked the banker to select the guests and he would settle the chit. Among those invited were a dozen orchidaceous beauties from a Broadway extravaganza.

It was surprising hoop-la for the staid going host. After blinking awhile he became utterly fascinated—in the manner of the snake charming the bird—with a vivacious blonde on his right. The more champagne she drank the more a kittenish hoyden she became.

After the party the banker delivered the California guest at his hotel and with engaging naivete confessed he had given the chorine a $20 gold piece. "That will compensate for such a dull evening with an old fogy the-mud," he explained.

The Californian indulged a secret smile. He knew such party girls were accustomed to a thousand dollar bill or something in sable or chinchilla. At any rate he returned to the west coast and three weeks later came to New York with his wife. The banker phoned in a state of fixed despair. He was hearing wedding papers.

The chorus girl, thinking the $20 piece was merely "for luck," scratched her initials on it along with the banker's and the date of the dinner. She was displaying it with sly wiles. The banker, fearing tabloid headlines, asked his friend to get the coin at all costs.

Next evening the San Franciscan and his wife dropped into a movie. Later the chorus girl and a friend lurched in blotto and left seats. On the way out the San Franciscan's wife picked up a dropped purse. Inside was the initialed coin. Next day he tossed it on the banker's desk with: "How's that for service?"

Paris Is Changed.

BY RALPH HEINZEN

Paris, March 29—U.P.—Thirteen years have come and gone since the last of the American troops of the A. E. F. were carted to Brest and shipped home, but to a million doughboy minds Paris is still a city of wine, women and song—and very little else.

At the risk of ruining a million memories Paris must be "debunked." True, there is still wine—at a price, and far too much left unsung if you listen to the winegrowers; there are women, but they work hard and are far too busy to listen to the appealing "Promena Mad-moiselle?", and there is song—but it is the American mammy song, the overaged Volga boat song, booming from Russian pharynxes or a Tzigane melody plucked from his strings by a Magyar.

• • •

There would be a million disappointments if the A. E. F. ever came back, for Paris is no longer naughty. There were no reforms, no constitutional amendments, no anti-vice, anti-song leagues, but Paris discovered that all play and no work makes Jack a very poor boy.

Extraordinary changes have occurred since those hectic days of 1918-1919. Paris is not the same as when the millions of doughboys last saw it. Paris is no more naughty than Chattanooga, or Grand Rapids. It is getting so that a gigolo has to look for a job to find out his income.

America may be somewhat responsible. America gave France a lot of new ideas. The movies did much to educate the French in the mysteries of big business.

• • •

To bring Paris up to date for the misguided millions, let them ponder over this:

Bread is no longer sold in five-foot sticks but made up in "American" loaves.

Voisin's—famed home of roast duck à l'orange—is closed and the place will be demolished.

Paillard's, with its famed wine cellar, has gone the way of Voisin's, and a palace devoted to the talkies will rise there.

Poor women carrying baskets to market do not ride in taxis now, for taxis were put on the New York basis.

The Bois de Boulogne—trysting place of many a doughboy lover—is locked up nowadays nights.

The "bistrot," with its zinc bar and fine sweet wines, was torn out to make room for an "American bar," with vilely-concocted cocktails.

Chief of Police Chiappe has seen to it that unattached women in search of company may not wander at will along the boulevards. Those women you find there are either going to or coming from work and are not inclined to accept invitations to "promenade."

The "pinard," or red wines of war days, has disappeared from the boulevard cafes, and fancy foreign mixtures are all you can buy.

Irrigation System To Be Used at Marsh Experiment Station

Special to The Star

KENTON, March 29—One of the outstanding features of the new Ohio State experiment station which is to be established on the Scioto marsh near McGuffey will be a combination irrigation and drainage system designed to supply a uniform amount of moisture to the various test crops which will be grown on the 10 acres of marsh lands recently acquired by the state.

Practically all the plot is to be tiled to permit a thorough drainage of the soil in wet weather. A well will be drilled for the purpose of feeding water back through the tile in dry weather. In this manner the state officials in charge of the farm expect to supply uniform moisture to the growing crops.

Prof. Donald Comin, now connected with the Wooster experiment station, has been appointed manager of the Scioto marsh station and will move to McGuffey on completion of a combined laboratory and residence. Harry Obenour of McGuffey has been appointed assistant manager and will have charge of the construction of sheds and the preparation of the test plots early next month.

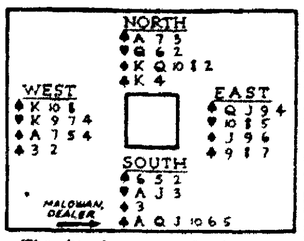
Tips on CONTRACT

DECEIVING THE ENEMY
By Tom O'Neil

A little slam in clubs with 100 honors when he could have been set is among the tournament accomplishments of Walter Malowan, one of the stars of the Cavendish club of New York.

A deceitful discard caused the enemy to lead hearts when by a spade lead the declarer's reentry to dummy and with it hope of success with the contract would have vanished.

The hand:



The hand was a laydown for three no trump, but Malowan's success with the club contract gave his side high mark for the board.

West led a club as the least harmful of unsatisfactory leads. South won and led his diamond. West ducking for fear of setting up the diamonds in dummy.

North won with the queen and returned a small diamond, which South trumped. South led up to the king of clubs in dummy and North then led the king of diamonds upon which South discarded a small heart.

Malowan's only chance was to fool the defense and he did so with the discard. West thought South was trying to get rid of hearts. After West took the king of diamonds with his ace he led a small heart, giving Malowan the lead of the tricks two red suits were cubs, one spade and two diamonds upon which two spades in the South hand were discarded.

A spade lead would have removed Malowan's only entry to dummy. He could not have ruffed diamonds to play two good diamonds. He would have lost two spades and made only four instead of six as over book.

YESTERDAY Leslie V. Shaw, secretary of the treasury under Theodore Roosevelt, died, aged 84. At about the same time Chief Bacon Rind, once ruler of the Osage Indians, passed on to the happy hunting grounds, aged 72. "A cancer killed him.

Chief Bacon Rind was six and one-half feet high, and important from the white American point of view, because he was chief and adviser of the richest lot of Indians on earth. Oil made them rich. How could large-hearted white men, carefully picking out the worst lands to give to the Indians, imagine that oil worth hundreds of millions was hidden under these barren lands?

Did the white man's statesmen and the Osage chief travel together on the mysterious journey that we all take when life ends? Did one go to one heaven, the other to another heaven? Is one an Indian and the other a white man in the future life? Or are both totally unlike Indians and white men?

Lecture-Recital Club Presents Guest Artists as Season Ends

MEMBERS of the Marion Lecture-Recital club climaxed their season with the presentation of a guest artists' program last night which leaves the members and patrons with happy memories of an evening of music and sets a high standard for next years guest performers. The program was given in the ballroom at Hotel Harding by members of the Oberlin Conservatory trio composed of Maurice Kessler, violin, Friedrich Goerner, cello, and Axel Skjerne, piano, and Miss Madalaine Dunlap of Columbus, soprano. Aside from Mr Skjerne, members of the trio and Miss Dunlap were not strangers to local music patrons and the fact that he did not remain a stranger for any length of time was proven in the whole hearted applause he received at the close of his group of piano numbers. The trio appeared on a program sponsored by the club eight years ago. Miss Dunlap is a former member of the club and also has been heard in club and church work in the city.

Compositions by Schumann and Saint Saens were presented by the trio and Mr Skjerne chose for his piano presentation numbers by Chopin. Color, technique and melodious shading blending from brilliancy to lilting melodies and the heavier but no ponderous interpretations of the various movements were brought out by the trio in their two groups which included "Allegro ma non troppo" "Adagio" and "Con brio" in Schumann's opus No. 63 and "Allegro non troppo" "Andante con moto" "Grazioso presto agio" and "Allegro non troppo" Saint Saens Opus No. 92.

Mr Skjerne was heard in "Fantasie Impromptu" Waltz in E Minor and Prelude in A Flat Major."

Mrs Dunlap who possesses a colorful and charming soprano voice sang 'Psyche' Paladilhe, "Nobody Saw" Lowe and "Er Ist Gekommen," R. Franz for her first group and 'Fluttering Bird' Mana Zucca, "Animal Crackers" Hageman, "Cradle Song, Kramer and "Holiday," Scott, for her last group. Her accompaniments were played by Mrs. Harold K. Mc Cune. The musicians were given a most enthusiastic and appreciative applause at the close of the numbers and members of the trio generously responded with an encore playing "Slow Movement" Minor," by Mendelssohn.

Mrs. John Lacey, president of the club, announced tryouts for solo and ensemble work in the club for April 25. The First Presbyterian church choir wishing to try out for places are asked to get in touch with Mrs T. R. Evans, chairman. The annual tryout for chorus work will be held as usual in September and also announced a picnic party for later in the season with the dinner arranged next year for the active club members. Plans for this are in charge of Mr George Klemmer, chairman. Members of the section of the club will motor to 4 with Miss Mary E. Lawrence of east Center street.

Mr Kessler, Mr Goerner and Mr Skjerne were dinner guests last night of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Rea of Windsor street.

DON'T DESTROY

the ELASTICITY *that makes stockings wear

DO YOU KNOW what causes those ruinous stocking runs?

New stockings are elastic. They give under strain, stretch and then spring back again. When this precious elasticity is destroyed, the silk threads, instead of giving, break under strain. It is then that runs start!

That is why Lux is especially made to preserve the elasticity that makes even sheer stockings WEAR.

LUX
1¢ a day
Have you tried Lux for dishes? Gives you lovely hands for less than 1¢ a day—works faster, too.
For all fine laundering

The Lux Way to make stockings wear

Wash this 2-minute way: 1. One teaspoon of Lux for each pair. 2. Add lukewarm water to Lux, squeeze suds through stockings, rinse well.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali which weakens threads, fades color. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

Contraband

KITTY had hoped Gar would come straight here. And he ... She put stock away slowly. ... was the last to leave the ... g. She stood for a moment ... irresolute, letting the ... ng crowds jostle her. It ... for a moment not possible ... back to a lonely evening in ... m street. And suddenly ... s aware of a man standing ... curb, his back to her, a ... so dearly familiar that she ... quick cry: "Gar!"

... an to him, calling again.

He wheeled about. She saw his face set, dark with a scowl, but she did not heed it, nor the passers-by. "Gar! Oh, Gar!"

"So Tubby wasn't lying!"

"Gar, let's go where we can talk." She caught the lapel of his coat, clung to it.

"I'll say we've got something to talk about, Kit! Hy...." He hailed a cruising taxicab. He opened the door and stood stiffly aside to permit her to enter.

"Where to, sir?" asked the driver.

"Oh, anywhere! Keep going until I tell you to stop," Gar answered savagely. Then he stepped in and slammed the door shut behind him.

"Now!" he growled, turning to Kitty. But her face lifted to his was so alight with love, so warm with longing, that his anger melted. He caught her roughly to him, holding her close; he kissed her.

"Oh, Kit, how I've wanted you."

He felt tears against his face and he kissed them from her cheek and her eyes.

"Gar—I've missed you!"

That was all that they could say, then.

But after a little Gar roused.

"You kid, you ought to be spanked. What I've gone through hanging on to myself until you got over your sulks. How long have you been in town anyway?"

"I didn't go to Bridgewater, Gar. Pound knew—"

"But it was Pound told the mother that you'd gone to your folks!" Kitty drew back a little from his arms. "Pound told your mother that?" A growing certainty brought a little frown between her brows. Pound had not told Mrs. Frew that—it was what she wanted Gar to believe.

"We'll let the family go on thinking you've been in Bridgewater all this time. I don't intend the mother sha'l know what you've been up to. Tubby'll keep his mouth shut. I told him to. But where have you been staying Kit?"

"On Ketchum street, with a friend of David's. I went to David that night, Gar. You see I'd met him once when he came to have dinner with his father. He was nice—"

"Nice!" Gar exploded. Then suspiciously: "How come you didn't speak of it at the time, Kit? That's funny."

"I couldn't give him away. I mean, his practice of coming to the house to see his father when the rest of the family wer away."

"The devil he did!" He tightened his hold on her masterfully. "It makes me sick, Kit, thinking of you going 'round with any of David's rotten crew. But you're through with that whole business, let me tell you."

"What do you mean, Gar?"

"Mean? I'm going to take care of you. You're just a silly little kid from the country. You don't know anything about the big world. You're a precious sweet—" He pushed off her hat to bury his face in her hair. His lips moved down to press hard against hers. "I'm going to take you home."

His ardor was burning through her like a flame; his voice, his endearments, the remembered clean smell of his hair, his hands, his cheek close to hers filled her starved heart with a passion of adoring. And even while she protested: "Oh, Gar, not there—not to your mother's, she clung to him more tightly. "Gar, darling, I'm sorry about that last night. I was angry—I didn't mean everything—but I did mean—" She had to struggle against the longing to surrender wholly— "Gar, we'll never be really happy until—"

She closed her eyes that she might not see him face. If he were angry, now, she could not bear it, she must die—

But he did not relax his hold of her.

"Funny little kid. Old Sweet! Have it your way! I'll take that job with dad tomorrow, if it's going to make you happy. Now, is there anything more to be said?"

"Yes!" She laughed softly. She turned a radiant, flushing face to his.

"You haven't told me that you love me."

"I love you, and more tomorrow and more the next day—"

• • •

"David;" Kitty hailed David as he was turning away from the Times building several days later.

"I believe you saw me and that you were going to go on without speaking to me," she accused.

"What nonsense — I'm getting near-sighted. Or maybe it's that you look a little dazzling—"

"And then I'll say nonsense to that. And I'm not going to let you go now, either." She put her hand through his arm with a little impelling gesture, lifting a glowing, soft face to him. "Let's have tea somewhere. Let's go back to our apartment—"

"Not there," David answered quickly. "But I'll go anywhere else. What's the matter with that place?" He nodded toward a chintz-hung window.

"Perfect!"

She settled herself comfortably in her chair, regarding David with affectionate interest. "It's been perfect ages since I've seen you. Did going out to your little house square things up for you?"

He flashed her a quizzical, half-ironical glance. "I disposed of it," he answered shortly.

"David, I've missed you!"

He shook his head. "You can't expect me to believe that, Kitty, much as I'd like to." He surveyed her, affecting astonishment, under which Kitty grew more radiant. "You are dazzling," he repeated.

"Silly! It's only a new hat and a new coat, and inexpensive ones, at that. But I don't wonder they make you stare—you've only seen me in those disgracefully shabby things I wore on Ketchum street. I suppose I do look like a different creature.

He had not kept a mocking edge from his voice. Kitty's flush deepened.

"I am happy, David. And I've wanted you to know. That's why I was so glad when I ran into you. Everything's going beautifully. Gar's working for his father and he likes it. We've leased a furnished apartment at the Tudor Arms until we're enough ahead to take a house somewhere."

"And you've made a truce with Mrs. Frew?"

Kitty hesitated disconcerted for a moment by David's implication. "Something like that. She's very charming when we meet. She's far too busy to come to see us—she's been over only once. And I don't think of her any more than I have to. Gar doesn't know what I overheard that day you see. There didn't seem any use in telling him. I can forget it, now." She spoke triumphantly.

But David's expression made her triumph seem empty.

He wasn't drinking his tea; he pushed the little cakes he had ordered away from him. Kitty noticed that he was thinner, restless, that his clothes looked shabbier.

"David, let's talk about you. How's the book going?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "Static. If it starts any action it'll be toward a waste basket."

"David! What does Dorcas say to that?"

"I haven't seen Dorcas lately." She protested again.

"How about yourself? The last time I did see her she asked me what I'd heard of you."

He had countered Kitty effectually. She had seen Dorcas only once since she had left Ketchum street.

"My housekeeping keeps me very busy," she answered, a little primly. "I love it, David. And evenings Gar always wants to do something —" But her defense sounded lame in her own ears; she stopped, a little confused.

"And were contraband, anyway" David finished.

Kitty's face sobered. She gave an impatient little shake of her head. "You always put things so disagreeably, David! Just when everything's particularly nice you say something to spoil it. Is it that you like to offend me?" If so I'll go straight away and save you the bother."

GUN FAILS TO HALT PASTOR'S PAY CUT

By International News Service

ATLANTA, Ga.—Brethren of the Sin No More church here are without a pastor.

The financial committee met to talk over the money matters and compare the littleness of the income with the bigness of the outgo. They decided to cut the pastor's salary.

But the pastor, Rev. H. J. Blakeley, happened to be present and strongly objected to the move. The argument became heated and Rev. Mr. Blakeley whipped a big revolver from under his coat tails to enforce his point of view.

He did. But after the pastor had gone the committee called the police. Officers sought the gun-toting pastor but in vain.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Hugh Offers To Take Care of All Madge's Male Guests at The Larches.

SO relieved was I at Hugh Grantland's sudden transition from fierce, crass comment upon the news that I had written a play for Philip Veritzen, to quiet inquiry concerning my party, that I caught his cue with alacrity, glad indeed to have averted what might have been an unpleasant recollection for both of us.

"It's quite an ambitious party that I'm giving," I told him, and I think I shall be glad of the help of all my friends before I'm through. Mrs. Arlen, who is the widow of Mr. Veritzen's best friend is spending the summer near here with her daughter. Mr. Veritzen I think, wishes to have his son marry Miss Avis, but Noel, as you know, has other plans."

"He and your husband's niece are betrothed, are they not?"

"Yes, and Mr. Veritzen, who opposed the match bitterly, last Christmas gave his consent and settled upon Noel his mother's money, that he had kept away from the boy. But that does not prevent him from maneuvering to keep the two apart, or to throw another girl in Noel's way."

Hugh Offers The Larches

"Then why?" he checked himself, but I promptly finished his question.

"Why am I giving a party for her?" I said, smiling. "In the first place neither my husband nor I feel that we can refuse Mr. Veritzen's request to do something for his friends socially; and in the second place—please don't think me catty—the very surest way of riveting Noel's allegiance to Mary is to see her in the same room with Avis Arlen."

"Is this Miss Arlen so attractive, then?"

"At first sight she is very attractive, or some people appear to think so. But wait I'll let you judge for yourself."

"You rouse my curiosity," he said, smiling. "Never before have I known you to speak disparagingly of any human being."

"I loathe her," I said quickly, and then as quickly apologized. "Please forget that I said that." I added contritely. "I have no right to say that."

"It is already forgotten" he assured me "Are you going to have a house party, or are your guests to come from near here?"

"A house party, practically. There will be a few guests from Sag Harbor, but besides the people already in the house, I shall have four older people, four or five college boys and cadets, and two more girls from Marion's school."

"Good Heavens!" he ejaculated "Where will you put them all? I know the farmhouse is large, but that number would tax a hotel. However, here is my opportunity. You must let me take all the men over to The Larches."

"We are used to doubling up," I told him, "and I had planned to put cots in my bungalow studio for the boys."

"But how unnecessary," he persisted, "when The Larches simply yearns for occupants! The two sick men and I are housed in one small wing, and the servants have nothing to do in all the chambers except ours. I rattle around in the drawing room and the billiard room and library like a dry bone. It will be jolly to have a houseful."

"How about your patients?"

"Lee Chow will be a patient no longer by the end of the week," he said. "His recovery is as rapid as his illness, caused by that poison. He will be perfectly able to attend your party, and I am sure he will be delighted to come, as well as to share with me in making your masculine guests comfortable."

"As for the other man, he is slowly getting better. Our wing is isolated, and he is deaf. Nothing can disturb him. Have you any more objections?"

He was smiling down at me now, and I saw that I had exorcised his fierce mood of a few minutes before. With the realization that our hospitality to him and his friends had not been limited by any considerations of comfort for ourselves, and that he sincerely wished an opportunity to repay us I put all qualms as to Dicky's possible reaction to this proposition behind me, and spoke promptly, gratefully.

"Not a single one. It is awfully good of you, and I accept your offer gratefully."

"Thank you." He spoke the words as fervently as if I had just done him a signal favor. "Now, please understand, I mean all the men, the ones of your own household included. With so many guests I should imagine it would be much pleasanter if the household for the night were entirely feminine."

How Would Dicky React

"Like a sorority house, or a boarding school," I said, smiling. "If you had ever entertained school girls with their dashes through the halls, your imagination would become concrete."

"I haven't, but I can guess," he said. "Your husband and father and Mr. Underwood won't object to coming over to me, will they?"

"My father has a tiny suite of his own, sitting room, bedroom and bath," I said, "so that he will not appear in the halls until dinner is ready and everybody downstairs. He would not like to change his bed, I am sure, but I know my husband and Mr. Underwood will be glad to be rid of the feminine fuss."

I spoke confidently, but deep within me was a distinct tremor of apprehension as to how Dicky would react to this offer of aid from Hugh.

NEW SHREDDED BISCUIT TOASTED ON BOTH SIDES

Extra Crispness Just One of Many Improvements Developed for Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit

In line with its policy of constant improvement, the Kellogg Company some time ago introduced a new shredded whole wheat biscuit which offers several outstanding improvements in this type of cereal.

The new Kellogg biscuit is "pressure-cooked" by a special process that retains the full food value of the whole wheat. At the same time it produces a delicious mellow flavor and makes the biscuit very easy to digest.

The biscuits are also much crisper and crunchier, for they are toasted on both top and bottom—not just one side. Incidentally they are also a new, convenient size to fit the cereal bowl without crumbling. And you get 15 to the package instead of the usual dozen.

As evidence of the high food value of the Kellogg biscuit, the Medical Arts Laboratory of Philadelphia made a careful analysis and certify every package.

Grocers say Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are winning wide favor. Healthful and delightful for any meal. Especially good with hot milk. Identify this improved food product by the name Kellogg's and the familiar red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Godfrey Named To Grid Post at Ohio State

BY JAMES L. RENICK
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, O., March 29 — Ernest R. Godfrey, freshman coach at Ohio State university for the last three years today was named varsity line coach, succeeding George Hauser, recently resigned. Hauser will take a similar position at Minnesota.

The announcement was made by L. W. St. John, director of athletics, and S. S. Williaman, head football coach, after a conference with members of the board of athletic control.

At the same time Williaman announced Richard Larkins, who assisted Godfrey with the freshman last year, would take charge of the yearling activities.

Wesley Fesler, who joined the coaching staff last year along with Larkins, will serve as assistant line coach.

No definite announcement was made concerning the backfield coaching position. Both St. John and Williaman said they expected Don Miller would return.

Promotion of Godfrey to the varsity coaching staff furthers Ohio State's program of using alumni of the institution and keeping the coaches on a full time basis, Godfrey graduated in 1915, after playing three years as varsity center.

Godfrey coached at Wittenberg, enjoying phenomenal success with his basketball and football teams, winning several Ohio conference and Buckeye Athletic Association titles in both sports, before returning to his alma mater in 1929.

Since coming to Ohio State Godfrey has elevated freshman athletics to a high plane.

With Larkins in charge of the freshmen this year, Floyd Stahl will coach reserve football and act as head scout, assisted by Cyril Surina. Larkins played the opposite end from Fesler for three years.

Calvary To Organize.

Calvary Evangelical Sunday school's recreation baseball team will meet at the home of J. W. Harruff at 270 Forest street on Thursday at 8 p. m. to organize for the coming season. Other important business of the Calvary athletic association will be discussed. All members of last season's team and aspirants for berths on the club this season are asked to be present. A manager and captain will be named. Harruff was pilot of the team last season and "Fido" Robbins was captain.

BOSTON WIN STREAK TIGHTENS RACE FOR TRAINING CAMP LEAD

National League Trails American, 19-13 in "Crape Fruit" Circuit Victories.

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March 29—Thanks principally to the Boston Braves, the National league has pulled up considerably closer to the American in their annual spring training competition.

The American league still leads in total victories, 19 to 13, but its winning average has shrunk from .650 to .594 during the past week.

The Braves, recovering from a bad start, were the biggest National league winners of the week. They took two games out of three from the New York Yankees, and won a single clash from the Philadelphia Athletics.

In the inter-league series, the New York Giants and Philadelphia Nationals each have won three games and lost only one to the American leaguers but the real leaders are the powerful New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics each of whom have won eight games and lost four.

The Giants lead the field in the records for National league teams. They have won 10 and lost four to major league opposition.

The Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox are the only teams still undefeated in exhibition games. The Indians have won 10 straight and the White Sox eight.

VINES FAVORITE TO WIN TENNIS MEET

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON, Tex., March 29—Ellsworth Vines, youthful national singles champion, swung his racquet as the favorite in men's singles competition of the invitation tennis tournament opening at the River Oaks Country club today.

He faces stiff competition, however, in the closing matches.

If the draw runs true to form the Los Angeles star will meet Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., in the semi-finals of the upper bracket. In the lower bracket George Lott of Philadelphia would meet J. Gilbert Hall of East Orange, N. J.

Three Ineligible.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 29 — Bobby Colburn, Frank Conrad and Louis Rice, athletes at Ohio State university, have been declared ineligible for spring sports because of scholastic deficiencies.

Three Entries in

Humans don't change much from year to year when it comes to putting things off.

With little more than a week's time remaining before the deadline for entering teams in the city recreation baseball leagues, exactly three teams have turned in their entries and of these three only one has entered a list of players. Which is just about the same as in former years, Elmer Shaw, secretary of the city commission, reports. Entries up to three days before the deadline are few and far between and from then on, the office is deluged with applications for berths.

• • •

Lee Street Ready

Lee Street Presbyterian is the first church to enter its list of players for this year. The lineup of the club apparently will be nearly the same as the one which finished in sixth place in the No. 1 Sunday school loop last season. Johnnie Marshall, a third baseman, and plenty good, if any one should ask you, will captain the squad this season, replacing Mike Braham, a short stopper. Charles Stephenson will pilot the club, replacing Bert Curtis.

The list of players turned in by the club is as follows: Kerr (Tuffy) Konkle, Harold Richards, Jimmy Kerr, George Primm Jr., Mike Braham, John Marshall, George Barr, Benny Crabtree, Wade Konkle, James Anspaugh, John Richards, Gib Hammond, Walter McElroy, Bill Stineman, Bob VanScoy Charles Burke, Tony Caprino and Carl Fadely.

• • •

Helps Indus League

The decision of the softball commission to allow unemployed players to play with teams which they played with last season is certain to prove a distinct boon to the pennant hopes of several of he city industrial circuit entries. A large number of players who are now members of the "army" are making plans to join the ranks of the team they played with last season. All of which means the Industrial league race will be just as tough this year as ever.

• • •

Just Odds and Ends

No less than three Sunday schools are angling for the services of Francis Bacon for the coming season . . . "Bake" isn't certain which team, if any, will get his services . . . The Masons and Eagles have both taken entry blanks from the commission secretary with the intention of entering teams in the Commercial league this season . . . So have the Honey Krust Bakers and Augustine A. C., both of which asked for and were refused berths last season . . . No one seems to know yet whether the Epworth Seniors will play this season . . . If not it will be the first time in several years that Epworth has not been represented by three teams . . . John Clark's No. 1 Epworth nine and the Bishops will both be in there fighting, oh my yes . . . I'm told the C., D. & M. is likely to find itself starting the season without a dependable twirler in the lineup, but don't quote me . . . The First Presbyterians are doing a lot of worrying about who is going to take the places of several players of last year . . . . Legislation is now brewing in the commission to eliminate the signing of special players to fill out a world series team's lineup . . . It's very simple, the team which wins the pennant but doesn't have enough players for the series will give way to the team finishing in second place . . . But the rule isn't passed yet.

HOCKEY PLAYOFFS APPROACHING END

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 29—Two at least and probably all three of the preliminary National hockey league playoffs leading to the Stanley cup series will be completed tonight.

The second place series between the Chicago Blackhawks and Toronto Maple Leafs and the third place playoff between the Detroit Falcons and Montreal Maroons will wind up Toronto and Montreal.

At New York, the New York Rangers need only one more victory over the world champion Montreal Canadiens to win the first place series and at the same time qualify for the Stanley cup finals.

Training Camp Highlights

By The Associated Press

Manager Dan Howley announced his personal belief that "the team is stronger in all departments than it has been at any time for the past three years."

Considering his squad far advanced, Howley gave yesterday over to only light practice. Today the team plays the Yankees at St. Petersburg.

• • •

SAVANNAH, Ga.—The jinx that has been keeping step with George Stumpf of the Red Sox has sent him to a hospital. Stumpf has been handicapped by injuries or illness since the beginning of the training season and a blood test taken yesterday, showed symptoms either of intestinal influenza or typhoid fever.

• • •

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—George Susce, aggressive, hard hitting recruit catcher, has made the grade with the Detroit Tigers. The Tigers lost a 13-inning thriller to the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5 to 4, but it wasn't Susce's fault. In the twelfth inning, he braved Paul Waner's spikes to tag the Pirate out at the plate.

• • •

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Manager Roger Peckinpaugh got ready today for further trimming of the Cleveland Indians squad. An unusually capable lot of young players already have been sent to the Toledo Mud Hens and several more are to follow.

Unless Thornton Lee manages to hang on with the Tribe, Peckinpaugh will be without a left-handed hurler, as Pinky Shoffner has been released.

• • •

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The New York Yankees have cut loose two young pitchers for more seasoning. Released on option were Hormidas Aube and Rufus Meadows.

• • •

CLEARWATER, Fla. — The Brooklyn Dodgers' failure to win during the exhibition season leaves Manager Max Carey unperturbed.

"After all, these games don't mean anything," says Max. "If we continue to lose after April 12, then I'll be worried."

• • •

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—Eddie Moore, who used to do his infielding for Pittsburgh, apparently is winning his fight for a place with the New York Giants this season.

The aggressive infielder, is hitting so well in the exhibition games that Manager John McGraw probably will keep him around for utility duty.

• • •

CARNERA MANAGER UNDER SUSPENSION

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 29—Leon See, manager of Primo Carnera, today was under suspension by the national boxing association, at least until a check for $1,400 is made good.

See gave the check to pay a fine assessed by the boxing commission in order to make possible a fight between Carnera and King Levinsky, at the Chicago stadium last fall. The check came back marked insufficient funds, and Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the N. B. A., ordered the suspension.

The ban does not affect Carnera.

Special to The Star

LA RUE, March 29—The annual awarding of basketball and football letters of the local high school was held in the school auditorium on Thursday night. The program opened by a class game between the juniors and seniors. The score was 18 to 16 in favor of the juniors. Those receiving football letters were: Robert Aikin, Lewis Gillespie, Charles Blow, Loren Noyes, Ben Sager, Robert Greenwood, Maurice James, George Weist, Eugene Longfellow, Richard Roux, Howard Whittlbslager, Delbert Greenwood, Clair Welling, Dale Parish and Norman Showers. LEADERS ARE UPSET IN BOWLING TOURNEY

Sensational Rolling Marks A. B. C. Competition as Close Nears.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, March 29—Only 31 teams are scheduled tonight in the American Bowling Congress tourney, now entering its final stages.

Yesterday's bombardment in the minor events was one of the most sensational in A. B. C. history. Leaders changed on practically every squad.

Topping the assault on the maples was a 731, registered by Otto Nitschke of Cleveland in scoring games of 245, 255 and 231. He passed Alex Graham of New Philadelphia, O., by 11 pins. His score has been beaten only twice in national competition and tied once. He stands an excellent chance of winning the 1932 title.

An error, the No. 8 pin in the second frame of the last game, prevented Eddie Zajac and John Sublosky of Chicago, from upsetting Charley Daw and Frank Benkovic for the doubles lead.

The Chicago combination totaled 1,350 on games of 467, 400 and 483. Sublosky shot 727 and Zajac 623.

PADDY MACK PINNI BY RAY CARPENTI IN SHOVEL CONFLI(

Semi-Final Battle Ste Show in Regular Weekly Mat Program.

Paddy Mack, the idol of Mar mat fans, lost his first match the local ring last night when was pinned in straight falls by R Carpenter, the Lancaster stre boy.

Mack put up a great battle a appeared to have the edge but couldn't keep his shoulders off mat. It was one of those rough fairs with both men doing plenty slugging.

Carpenter won the first fall 36 minutes with a double arm lo The second lasted less than minutes with Carpenter putting opponents shoulders to the m with a body chancery.

The feature match of the e ning, which developed into t bouts, came as a result of a subs tution in the semi-final. Pat Finegan, the pretty lad of Detro failed to show up for the bout a Sammy Vangler agreed to pin he Claude Swindel and Hugh Bell 45 minutes. Vangler weighed in 148, Bell at 143 and Swindell at 1

Vangler's weight advantage ga him falls over both men but n until one of the most excitin wrestling matches of the seas had been presented to the fa The fans nearly passed beyond t point of control and Vangler w given a police escort to the dres ing room.

Vangler chose to take on Bell f the first fall. He pinned the v eran farmer boy in 12½ minut after a slam bang bout.

It was Swindel who gave t fans their big thrill. Outweigh 13 pounds, the little wrestler ga Vangler plenty to think about b fore being pinned in 27 minutes a Mexican crab hold.

In the preliminary, Bell a Swindel wrestled 20 minutes to draw.

STOCKS HAVE BETTER TONE

Market Scores General Advance, Although Trading Is Sluggish.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 29 — The stock market developed a definitely better tone today, as Wall Street was encouraged by indications business was once more making progress toward balance.

Prices picked up at the opening and rallied rather impressively, with buying in International Harvester during the morning, which sent the stock sharply higher once around 12 o'clock. Trading remained brisk, however, and in the afternoon, gains of a point or more appeared in such issues as United States Steel, American Can, Consolidated Gas, Union Pacific Railroad, Santa Fe, New York Central, American Telephone, North American, Allied Chemical, Drug, Air Reduction, American Tobacco "B" and Sears Roebuck.

Anaconda and Southern Pacific sagged about a point to new lows, but most of the leaders held up well.

The market was also aided by the detailed announcement of the Ford Motor company's new models, which, the automobile industry hopes, may loosen considerable deferred buying for all the larger manufacturers. Improvement shown in several more railroad operating reports for February was also helpful.

GRAIN VALUES MOVE HIGHER

Prices Score General Advance After Getting Off to Slow Start.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 29—Grain prices developed an upward trend today after a hesitant start. Initial firmness of securities at New York, together with high rates for sterling exchange, acted as more than a counterbalance for setbacks in wheat quotations at Liverpool. Opening unchanged to ⅛ off, Chicago wheat futures scored a slight general advance later. Corn started unchanged to ⅛ higher and subsequently held near the opening figures.

Wheat bulls put stress on reports that in many sections west the price of wheat was lower than the price of corn, especially at stations in Nebraska and Kansas. It was contended that this situation was bringing about increased feeding of wheat to livestock. Price advances for wheat, however, were quickly succeeded by setbacks to well below yesterday's finish, a bearish factor being signs of a larger United States carryover of wheat this season than last year.

A steadying influence on declines of the wheat market came afterward from Kansas advices that windstorms were making the crop outlook serious. At Dodge City, Kan., the air was reported to be full of dust. Messages from other points said ditches in highways were filled with drifting soil, and that crop prospects were the worst in years. Corn and oats followed wheat.

Provisions were neglected.

Chic Star Patterns

—Practical and Simple—

Exquisite Afternoon Frock.

PATTERN 2156

Step-by-Step Instruction Diagrams Given with This Pattern.

For real chic, wear a frock that scorns trimming and fashions its own fabric into charming details and lines as you see here. The draped neckline, the pointed yoke cut in one with the perfectly adorable little sleeves and the zigzag seaming of the skirt are interesting, and fashionable to the nth degree. You may use chiffon, georgette, voile or flat crepe, solid color or print, with equally good results.

Pattern 2156 is obtainable only in sizes 16 to 20 and 34 to 42. Size 16 requires 4¼ yards of 39-inch fabric.

COUPON

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents. Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to the pattern department THE MARION STAR BUREAU, Pattern Fashion Syndicate, Inc., 243 West 17th St., New York City.

Council Provides for Day Captain on Police Force

New Officer Will Serve as Assistant to Chief on Day Shift; Will Not Mean Addition to Department; Present Members To Try for Post.

The addition of a second captain to the police department who would serve as an assistant to the chief on the day shift, was provided for by city council at its meeting last night. The ordinance creating the position of day captain also specified that the department should consist of a chief, two captains, two desk sergeants and not more than 19 patrolmen. The department at the present time consists of the chief, one captain, two desk sergeants and 13 patrolmen.

It was pointed out by Councilman W. G. Slack, chairman of the finance committee, however, that the ordinance would not mean the addition of any men to the force at the present time. The second captain will be selected from the men now in the department.

To Take Exam

A civil service examination for applicants for the place will be held shortly and it is expected practically all patrolmen will enter the race for the position.

The department at the present time is operating two men short of the former force, according to Chief W. E. Marks.

The action of council was taken upon a recommendation made by Chief Marks in his annual report that a day captain or lieutenant of police be appointed to relieve him of much of the outside detail, leaving him free to devote more attention to the more important work of the department.

A report of City Chemist Floyd Browne made to council last night, showed the average degree of hardness of the city water from March 16 to 28 to have been 12.2 points, 2 points greater than the maximum provided for in the franchise with the city. It was recommended by Councilman L. E. Starr that the attention of the company be called to the report.

Bank Bonds Approved

Depository bonds totaling $175,000 offered by the Marion County bank and the National City Bank & Trust Co., as depositories for city funds, were approved by city council. The bonds were approved by Russel M. Snare as city treasurer and City Solicitor Carter M. Patton previous to being presented to council. A bond of $150,000 was offered by the Marion County bank which is the chief depository for city funds and a bond of $25,000 by the National City Bank & Trust Co.

Council also transferred $11,560 from the general fund to various department funds. Eight thousand five hundred dollars was transferred to the safety fund, $1,200 to the public service fund, $500 to the health fund, $600 to the sewage treatment fund and $760 to the hospital fund.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, March 30

A LIVELY and very pleasant day is presaged by the prevailing lunar aspects. While the energies will be highly stimulated and aggressive, yet it seems as though they might be centered upon personal activities, domestic, affectional, social or artistic. It is an enjoyable time for romance and courtship. It would be well to be on guard against treachery, slander and to sign all writings with extra care.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a very lively and pleasant year, possibly with highly-stimulated energies, centered on domestic, social, artistic or romantic affairs, especially the latter, under the happy urge of venus trine with the moon, a most auspicious aspect for youth and happiness. But beware subtle attacks, misrepresentation and mischief through writings. A child born on this day may be artistic in many avenues of expression, kindly, gracious and friendly and should attain a happy position in life although subject to treachery and possibly misrepresentation.
